? Why use our gas and metering services?

- British coverage – We provide a range of energy metering solutions across Britain and have built an excellent reputation in customer service and quality of product.
- No job too big – We offer the design of complex meter modules, including larger rotary and turbine meters. This expertise ensures the deployment of bespoke solutions.
- Accreditations – Gas Industry Registration Scheme accredited utility design expertise combines intimate knowledge of legislation, safety standards and operator requirements
- Quality design team – Our utility design team work with a range of developers and contractors, delivering high quality new connections, disconnections, alterations and outlet pipework projects.
- Unique offering – We provide free, comprehensive and accurate quotes for our customers. Quotes cover all aspects of the project from design, delivery and implementation of the gas meter and infrastructure.
- Trusted – For nearly the past 20 years, we have completed thousands of connections for a wide range of organisations including gas suppliers, local authorities, consultants, developers and contractors.
- Customer offering – Customers can choose from a range of gas design and metering options.
- Dedicated service – Once plans are agreed, a dedicated project manager will be with you from project initiation through to completion.
- The power to choose – We provide a complete design, planning and construction solution for a new gas connection, including the excavation and laying of pipework. This can be delivered as complete solution or as individual elements – but whatever our customers choose, we manage gas network supply and all necessary industry data flows as part of our flexible service offer.
